Elizabeth Blackwell was born in England in 1821 and immigrated to New York City when she was ten years old. She wanted to become a doctor. That was nearly impossible for a woman in the middle of the nineteenth century. After writing many letters seeking admission to medical schools, she was finally accepted when she was twenty-four years old. She also gave music lessons for her tuition fee.

In 1849, after graduation from the medical school, she decided to start her further education in Paris. She wanted to be a surgeon, but a serious eye infection forced her to abandon the idea.

Upon returning to the United States, she found it difficult to start her own practice because she was a woman. By 1857, Elizabeth and her sister managed to open a new hospital, the first for women and children. Besides being the first female physician in the United States and founding her own hospital, she also established the first medical school for women.
