SECTION 4. READING

Read the passage and choose the correct answer from A, B, C or D.

There was a strange father, John Blake, from Michigan, who named his children after a computer software term. He told the local newspaper that the US traditional way of adding “Junior” or “II” after a boy’s name was too common. So, when his son was born last week, he decided on the name John Blake 2.0, as if he was a software programmer.

Mr. Blake admitted that it took months to persuade his wife, Jamie, to accept the idea. Mrs. Blake said she asked several friends whether they could accept this name or not. But they didn’t accept his idea.

Mr. Blake told the local newspaper he got the idea from a film called ‘The legend of 1900’, in which an abandoned baby is given the name 1900 to remember the year of its birth. “I thought that if you can do it, why can’t we?” he said. After little John Version 2.0 was born, Mr. Blake even sent a celebratory email to the family and friends, which was designed to look as if he and his wife had created a new software. “I wrote things like there are a lot of new features from Version 1.0 with additional features from Jamie,” he said. And he has already planned for his son’s future. “If he has another child, he could name it 3.0,” he said.

21. What do the names “1900” and “John Version 2.0” have in common?
- A. They are both connected to computers.
 - B. They are both untraditional.
 - C. They are to be equally popular.
 - D. They are both traditional.
22. From the passage we know that “John Blake 2.0” _____.
- A. is also a name of a computer
 - B. shows the traditional way of american baby naming
 - C. has the same meaning was “John Blake Junior”
 - D. tells something about the hope the father places on his baby
23. Which of the following is true according to the passage?
- A. All Mrs. Blake’s friends support their idea.
 - B. The name “1900” is also a computer software term.
 - C. When Mr. Blake had a second child, he would name it “John Version 2.0”.
 - D. Mrs. Blake didn’t agree to name her son after a computer software term at the beginning.
24. The film inspired him with the idea of _____.
- A. abandon baby
 - B. creating computer software
 - C. a strange name for his children
 - D. persuade his wife
25. A possible name for a future child could be _____.
- A. John Version 3.0.
 - B. John Version 2.0
 - C. The legend of 1900
 - D. John Version 1.0
